Saying goodbye!

We breed pygmy goats to sell as pets. Finding 'good' homes for them is always something we worry because we don't want any animals we have raised and loved, to go to a home where they won't get the same kind of love and attention. We always find it hard to say 'goodbye' when they go.

If you were in our shoes, what would YOU do to ensure you found good homes for the pygmy goat kids?

What sorts of homes do you think would be suitable for having two or more pygmy goats?

Are there some characteristics that ALL pet owners need to have or are they different depending on the pet being kept?

Do you have any pets? Are YOU a good owner?

Do you think anyone wanting to keep a pet should have to take some kind of test? What kind of test should it be?
